Money and Influence: MapLight is a nonpartisan nonprofit that strives to create a government that (actually) works for the people. By connecting the influence of special interest groups to the issues people care about, we empower journalists, citizens, and advocacy groups to hold government accountable. Since 2009, our findings illustrating the impact of political money on the issues affecting citizens' everyday lives have reached over 350 million people through TV, radio, magazines, newspapers, blogs, and other websites. From our work highlighting the obstacles faced by environmental activists working toward reform to our investigations uncovering pay-to-play politics among Cabinet appointees to our expose on how public pension money has been used to fund an anti-rent control campaign in California - and many other investigations like this - (Continued on Schedule O)

MapLight does not typically give grants. Our only grantee is the League of Women Voters of California Education Fund, with whom we work closely on a joint project, Voter's Edge California. Our grant to them supported expenses they incurred taking on a more significant portion of the outreach to under-served communities aspect of that joint work. We are able to closely and continuously monitor that work because it is part of our joint project.
